The story of the borough of

Dudley

Dudley has a fascinating history dating back 900 years. Dudley and the surrounding borough have a rich and varied history to explore from it's Saxon beginnings as 'Dodd's Ley'.

The town grew around the foot of the castle and the broad medieval market-place was at the heart of the medieval planned town laid out by Gervase Paganel in the 12th century. Further development of the medieval market town came through the growth of coal mining and ironworking in the Black Country's heyday.

The 17th century, however, saw a steady expansion with the growth of coal mining and ironworking, but through the Black Country's industrial heyday in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Today's town centre possesses a number of attractive buildings well worth a second glance.

Some examples of these buildings make up Dudley's Architectural Heritage Trail whose details can be found via <https://discover.dudley.gov.uk/walking-trails>

Enjoy your visit. Expect the unexpected.

Dudley Archives & Local History Centre

Want to discover more about yourself and your area? This is the place to start.

This fabulous centre allows you to explore the wonderful heritage of the Dudley borough. The fantastic collections that are preserved here span over three miles and include the Papal Bull (over 800 years old!); parish records; school records; historic photographs; plans; glass recipe and pattern books and wonderful maps!

Find out what the inspiring collections can reveal; book on to a free family history research slot; explore one of the illuminating exhibitions; join one of the Friends of Dudley Archives local history talks; or book a fascinating behind the scenes tour. Pop in to reveal more than just your history; discover more about your area, your family and ultimately yourself. The centre is also home to Dudley Museum at the Archives and the headquarters of the Black Country UNESCO Global Geopark

Black Country UNESCO Global Geopark

Geoparks are globally important landscapes around the world, recognised for their exceptional geology, wonderful wildlife and unique cultures.

The Black Country is a place where coral seas, steamy swamps, scorching deserts, icy wastelands, mines and furnaces created unique and wonderful landscapes over 430 million years of geological time.

Between 1600 and the 1960s intensive heavy industry covered most of the area and earned this region international recognition as 'The Workshop of the World', where anything could be designed and made.

This industrialisation saw much of the landscape 'black by day and red by night': due to the coal mining wastes, furnace slag heaps and glow of the furnaces at night.

Today, there are over 40 geosites to explore that together tell the story of the Black Country. It is an amazing place to explore with many 'hidden' gems.

If you are looking for information, or wish to become an ambassador to support the work, visit <https://blackcountrygeopark.dudley.gov.uk/bcg/>

Black Country Living Museum

Experience sights, sounds, smells, and tastes of the Black Country as you explore shops, houses and industrial workshops rebuilt in the Museum's canalside villages and high streets.

From the Industrial Revolution to post-war prosperity in the 1940s-1960s, discover the history of a small region that made a big impact on the people, culture and industry of the world.

Say 'ow am ya' to the people that made this place home, from metalworkers and miners to nurses and schoolteachers - and even a pub landlord or two.

As you delve into the past, try the Museum's famously bostin' fish and chips or pick up a paper bag of traditional sweets.

All of this included in one price for general admission and what's more, when you pay for just one day, your ticket gives you free daytime returns for a whole year!

Stourbridge Glass Quarter

Home to glassmaking for over 400 years, Stourbridge Glass Quarter not only enjoys a wealth of glassmaking heritage but is also home to a vibrant community of glass companies and innovative studio glass artists.

The Red House Glass Cone, Stourbridge Glass Museum, and Ruskin Glass Centre are at the heart of the Stourbridge Glass Quarter.

Each venue brings a different dimension to the visitors' exploration of glass, past and present.

Visitors can watch on-site glass makers at work across the Quarter, subject to availability. All sites offer a special shopping experience, for that unique gift. Visit glassquarter.org.uk for more information on everything the Glass Quarter has to offer.

Ruskin Glass Centre

The Glasshouse is home to Ruskin Glass Centre and the Glasshouse Heritage & Arts Centre.

Ruskin Glass Centre is home to 23 craft businesses with retail units to browse and an organic café.

The Glasshouse Heritage Centre celebrates 100 years of glassmaking with a Glass Heritage Officer on site to bring artefacts and exhibitions to life through guided tours.

The Glasshouse Arts Centre boasts a 400 capacity auditorium, studio theatre and meeting rooms. It hosts a range of activities from theatre and music performance to meetings, conferences and seminars.
